WHAT IS INSIDE

Repertoire database · concert planner with duration totals · practice log · a four-page guide to building the library. Excel file included.

GUIDE

Build the library once, use it for years

WHY A TABLE, NOT A FOLDER

A folder answers “what did I use for grade 3?” A table answers “what do I have in D major under two minutes that works for a combined choir?” That is the question that actually comes up in April.

FILL IT IN AS YOU GO

Add a row the week you teach a piece. Ten minutes a week beats a lost weekend in June.

THE 14 FIELDS

Title · composer · arranger · voicing or instrumentation · key · range · duration · difficulty · genre · language · source · license · last performed · notes.

KEEP THE LICENSE COLUMN HONEST

Public domain, purchased, rented, or school-owned. It is the column you will thank yourself for when a program is recorded or streamed.

WHAT THE WORKBOOK DOES

Repertoire — 60 rows, dropdowns, frozen header, three sample rows to copy.
Concert Planner — running order with an automatic total duration and a warning when you pass your limit.
Practice Log — 12 weeks, one row per student or per section.
Dropdowns — difficulty, voicing, status, license; edit the lists on the Lists sheet.

CONCERT PLANNER

Why programs run long

Most school programs run long for one reason: nobody added up the transitions. A 45-minute program usually has 12–15 minutes that are not music — walking on, walking off, applause, a speaker, a costume change.

ITEM	MINUTES	NOTES
Music (sum of pieces)		From the Repertoire sheet
Transitions (× number of groups)		Budget 90 seconds each
Welcome / speaker		Cap it at 2 minutes
Applause and pauses		About 30 seconds per piece
Total		If it is over your slot, cut a piece — not a transition

Rule of thumb: a K–2 audience loses focus at about 30 minutes. Grades 3–5 hold to about 40. Anything past 45 needs an intermission or a shorter program.
